SUSHI101

MAKI

Rolled Sushi

At it's simplest, rolled sushi consists of seaweed (Nori) spread with rice and topped with fillings. It is then rolled tightly using a bamboo mat (Makisu) and sliced into individual rounds. Small sushi rolls are called Hosomaki and large ones with many fillings are called Futomaki. Rolled sushi with rice as the outer layer is called inside-out maki.

NIGIRI

Finger Sushi

The best known and simplest form of sushi, Nigiri became popular as "fast food" in Japan about 200 years ago. It consists of a pillow of rice adorned with one of a variety of toppings and is sometimes wrapped with a strip of nori.

TEMAKI

Hand-Rolled Sushi

A more casual form of sushi. Temaki is meant to be eaten with your hands, rather than chopsticks. It is made up of Nori topped with rice and a variety of fillings, rolled into a cone shape.

SASHIMI Sliced Fish

Not strictly sushi, Sashimi is sliced fresh fish.
